

New branches in Manchester and London as agencies defy market

08 November 2018

By Graham Norwood

Meanwhile at the other end of the market and in London, high end operator Quintessentially Estates is opening its first bricks and mortar shop in London's Belgravia.

The branch, its first, will predominantly serve as a buying agent outlet, sourcing London property to rent and buy for clients.

A statement from the company says: "With an ambitious expansion plan and the opening of new offices over the next quarter, Quintessentially's offer will become more varied as new offices open globally."

Quintessentially also offers a home management service to its clients - it calls the offer a 'virtual housekeeper' that will keep an eye on a property, stock the fridge and arrange any repairs or work required to the property.

To read more, please visit: <https://www.estateagenttoday.co.uk/breaking-news/2018/11/new-branches-opening-in-manchester-and-london-as-agencies-defy-market>